Saunders Brother to reopen Locke Mills woodworking mill

- Consolidating Westbrook and Rumford mill operations
- Expect to employ 90 to 120 people here by next summer

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Saunders Brothers dowel mill in Locke Mills is going to be reopened, according to company president Josh Saunders.

Saunders Brothers plans to relocate its current production facilities in Westbrook and Rumford to Locke Mills.

The closing of the Westbrook facility will displace 90 workers there. In Rumford the company currently employs approximately 50 people.

Josh Saunders said those workers will be offered jobs at the Locke Mills plant.

Details of the relocation plan have not yet been worked out, Saunders said, "but we realized what the end state of this process would be and we wanted to let our people know as soon as possible."

He said the relocation is expected to be completed by sometime next summer, and at that point the Locke Mills plant would probably be employing 90 to 120 people.

Greenwood Town Manager Carol Whitman said: "This is just wonderful news for us, but it's a shame that it comes at the expense of the folks in Westbrook."

Saunders Brothers purchased the Locke Mills plant in 1999 from Duane Gilbert. At the time of the purchase, the company said it hoped to double sales within a year.

But the mill fell victim to the same foreign competition that has forced the closing of numerous other wood products operations.

In November of last year approximately 50 workers here were told the operation here was being shut down.

Reducing cost seen as essential

In a prepared release announcing the new plan, the company said that in order to continue as a major supplier in the industry, it had concluded it must "act aggressively to reduce operating costs."

Parking, hangar votes Monday

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The Bethel Budget Committee will be making no formal recommendations on either the proposed purchase of the American Skiing Company hangar at the Bethel Airport, or the plan to eliminate the grassy islands on lower Main Street in order to create more parking spaces.

A joint meeting of the town selectmen and the Budget Committee was scheduled for Monday evening, but only 5 of the 12 Budget Committee members — two short of a quorum — showed up.

For their part, the selectmen had earlier made their own recommendation on the hangar purchase, going on record as being unanimously opposed to it.

The second question calls for the town to spend $10,000 to pave over the five grassy islands on the west side on lower Main Street, in order to create 14 new parking spaces.

On Monday, the selectmen also voted twice on this issue: first voting unanimously to put the question on the warrant the special Town Meeting scheduled for Monday, then voting 4-1 to recommend voters approve the new parking.

Newry learns it has two 'primary' rescue services

By ALISON ALOISIO

Newry selectmen learned Tuesday that Med-Care and PACE ambulance services are apparently both considered the primary rescue responders for the town.

They also learned that since E-911 went into effect, a separate contract between PACE and Sunday River Ski Resort to respond to skiway property after skiing hours is no longer valid.

The board is now trying to respond in a way that will provide clear lines of responsibility for the two services.

Newry has had a contract for many years with Med-Care, of Mexico, to provide rescue coverage for the town.

Sunday River has contracted separately with PACE to provide on-site, standby rescue coverage during skiing hours, and response coverage to the mountain property and its condominiums after hours. PACE is based at Stephens Memorial Hospital in Norway.

But in a meeting Tuesday with representatives from Med-Care, selectmen were told the state's Emergency Medical Services 13 years ago authorized PACE to provide coverage for all of Newry.

The town has operated under the Med-Care contract. But the responsibilities need to be clearly sorted out, said selectmen, especially with the added confusion over who should now respond to Sunday River after hours.

Marvin Collins, Sunday River's vice president of operations, told selectmen the skiway's contract with PACE stipulated that mountain personnel contact PACE di-

Residents willing to pay to keep stump dump

By ALISON ALOISIO

In a straw vote Tuesday, about 50 Greenwood and Woodstock residents overwhelmingly favored keeping their stump dump open. They just as strongly favored investigating whether to turn the site into a composting center.

The G&W Solid Waste Committee called Tuesday's hearing after learning that complying with state stump dump licensing requirements would mean added expense for the towns. They wanted to hear how residents felt about the possibility of closing the dump.

Upgrading the existing site would cost about $3,500, with annual expenses to test ashes in the burn pit and haul them away around $1,000.

Private burning unpopular

Residents attending the meeting spoke in favor of keeping the dump open, saying the basic costs would be minimal if shared between the towns.

They didn't like the other options — burning wood on their own property, paying privately to dispose of it, or having the town pay to dispose of it through the brown goods container at the transfer station.

Pete Seames cited the current drought conditions as a reason to avoid private burning. "What are we going to do, let (wood) pile up beside the road? You can't get a permit to burn it," he said.

Greenwood fire chief Ray Seames agreed. "I don't want to issue any more fire permits," he said.

He also said he already has prob-

Nordic coach says young athletes pushed too hard

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

Dick Taylor's life has been shaped by Nordic skiing. A former Olympian and coach of the U.S. Ski Team, Taylor is a product of American sports culture. And he's taking that culture to task.

In a new book, "No Pain, No Gain?" Taylor argues that American training methods, particularly for endurance sports, are often damaging to young athletes, preventing them from reaching their true potential. "American sports culture asks young athletes to perform too much too fast, to push their bodies unrelentingly for the good of team, school or town," Taylor said.

In "No Pain, No Gain?" Taylor, Nordic coach at Gould Academy, is asking what is the true good in sport for the athlete.

Ironically, the answer to that challenging question may lead to greater success for American Nordic skiers, who have historically performed poorly in international competition.

The three-season athlete

"American sports culture is highly competitive," Taylor said. "It values winning at every stage of development. It defines 'personal best' as winning rather than simply improving."

"But improving suggests progressive mastery of skills and extending physical capacity for speed, endurance, and power. Winning may be a natural result, but the requirement to win, to prevail over others, often leads to sacrificing the time for patient and optimal development in which athletes are truly able to gain mastery of themselves and their ability."

The school-age hero — and victim — of American sports culture, is the nine-month competitor; it's the boy who runs track in the fall, plays basketball in the winter, and baseball in the spring. It's the girl who plays soccer in the fall, cross-country skis in the winter, and plays field hockey in the spring.

"The competition and games sports culture embedded itself in our school systems early in the 20th century and has changed little since. It is characterized by the competition game schedule," Taylor said.

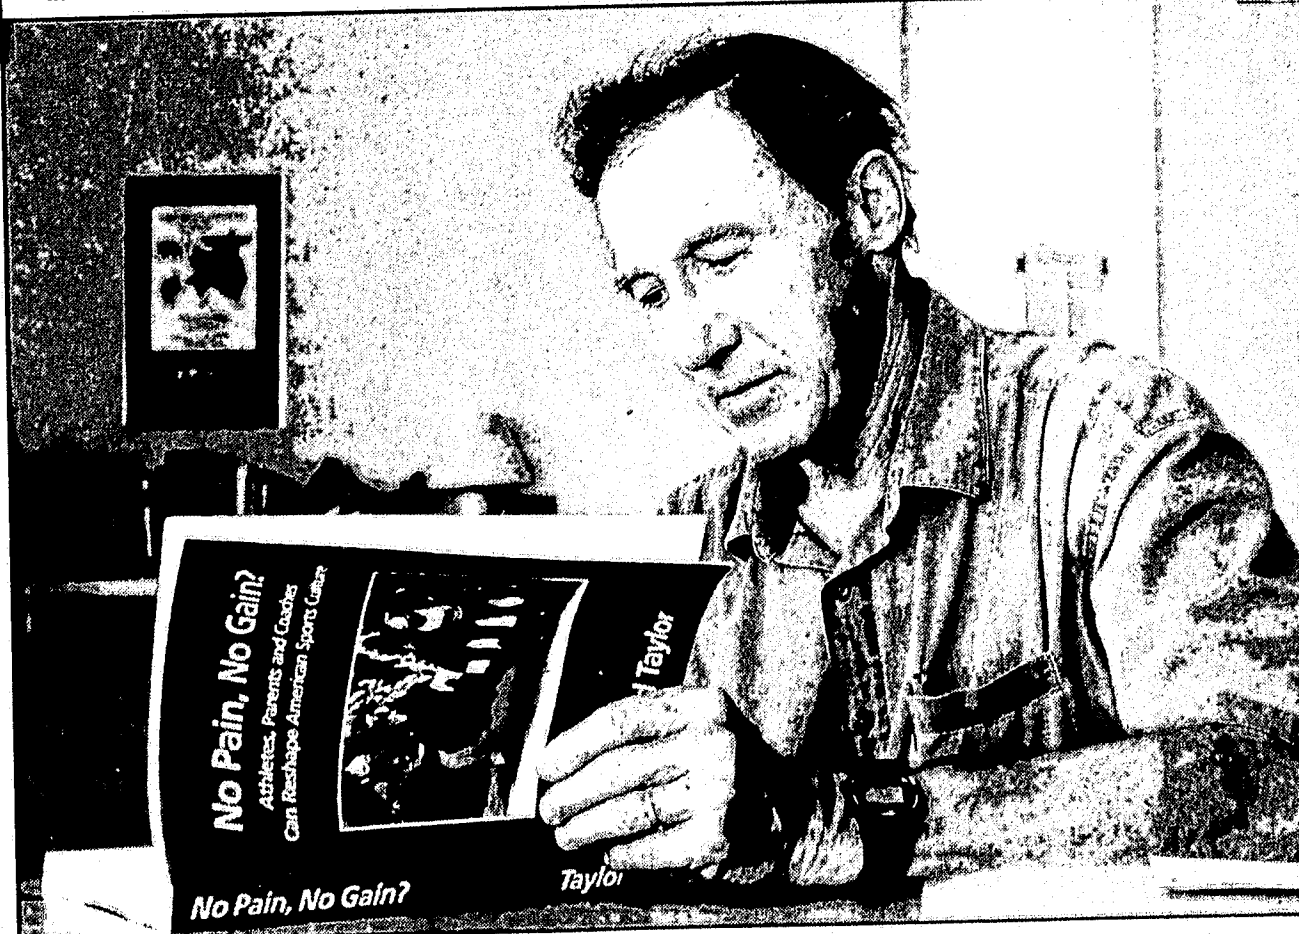

For a young athlete's body, it can be grueling. "One season after another, two weeks into the season, there is a race or game, sometimes two, every week. Then one championship ends, and two weeks later another season begins with almost immediate competition. There is little or no time given to develop base physical capacities, which take five to six weeks at a minimum. There is no time given to recover from the previous season before the next season begins, with a new coach, new training systems, and a new urge to win championship."

Taylor compares playing three sports to playing the clarinet for three months, then the violin, and then drums. It is obvious that the student has no time to gain mastery of any instrument on such a schedule, and yet that's exactly what American sports culture asks of school-age athletes.

"Our bodies are like musical instruments," Taylor said, "except the instrument and the player are one thing."

The lack of time to train properly risks not only a young athlete's physical development, Taylor said, but hinders his emotional development and motivation, as well.

"NO PAIN, NO GAIN?"
Dick Taylor, Nordic coach at Gould Academy, former Olympian and U.S. Ski Team coach, questions that hoary sports adage in his new book published by The Mechanic Street Press. The book details the history of American sport culture, the physiology of training school-age athletes for endurance sports, and the ways in which American athletes are pushed to compete rather than guided to improve. "Sports are not extracurricular for kids' emotional, physical, and intellectual lives," Taylor said. "Sports are as fundamental to curricula as anything they do. We need to think through what we do in sports and make it much more consistent with academic strategies." Taylor also includes a thorough section on Nordic training that is sure to please his many fans. (Photo by Rebecca Zicarelli)

NEED A MORE REALISTIC LEASE

To the Editor:

At a special town meeting on Oct. 7 at 7 p.m., Bethel voters will be asked to take a position on several issues. The purpose of this letter is to hopefully clarify the issue concerning whether or not the town should purchase American Skiing Corporation's (ASC) hangar.

The Bethel Airport Authority was created by the voters of Bethel when it became apparent that the airport, if it were to grow, needed a group whose only charge was to oversee its development and attempt to make it a self supporting enterprise, and not become a burden on Bethel taxpayers.

Things moved slowly for some time due to legal processes and environmental issues which had to be resolved. Bethel citizens were very patient and have stood behind the Authority in our efforts to make the airport a facility the town could be proud of.

Income for the operational needs at this time comes in a large part from the rental of the Gamm Building to ASC. Five years ago, when Sunday River wanted to build their 80' x 80' hangar, a 25 year lease was negotiated, at a low annual rate of 12.5 cents per square foot. In return ASC donated $150,000 to the Town of Bethel to cover the town's 5% share of the 3 million dollar expansion project, which is just now being completed. Included in the lease was the option to allow the Town of Bethel first refusal in the event that ASC wished to sell the hangar. That has happened and now the voters will determine whether or not to exercise this option.

Now, this is where the issue becomes more involved. A private individual has made a bid to buy it at the same price it was offered to the town. Nearly everyone, including the Airport Authority members, are in agreement that it makes more sense for a private concern to own it. What does not make sense is for anyone other than the Town of Bethel to benefit from the sale of a $200,000 hangar for $100,000. The extremely low per square foot rate of 12.5 cents would go along with the lease for the remaining 20 years, when realistically it should be more in line with other comparatively sized hangar at other airports. This is somewhere around 35 cents per square foot. Over the remainder of the 25 year lease, this would amount to more than $25,000 of lost income needed to support the airport, and would seem to place the town in the unusual position of subsidizing a private enterprise.

What needs to happen now is for this lease to be extinguished and a new lease executed at a more realistic per square foot rate. The only way to accomplish this is to purchase the hangar. This would further ensure the airport's goal of maintaining its self sufficient status and not become dependent on general tax revenue for ongoing airport operations. We would not expect to ask a substantially higher rent for the hangar. We need only to negotiate a more realistic lease for the town.

We realize this has become somewhat of a cloudy issue. Hopefully this helps clear up some of the points involved. We join the majority of the Airport Authority members in asking your support in this matter. More importantly, please attend the special meeting on October 7 and vote your conscience.

OUTING CLUB SKI SALE

To the Editor:

The Bethel Outing Club 22nd Annual Ski Sale will take place Friday and Saturday Oct. 25 and 26, and will offer the usual broad array of alpine, cross-country, and snowboarding equipment from over a dozen ski shops. Ski Depot will mount bindings at the sale on both Friday night and Saturday, so that purchasers can leave with "hill-ready" equipment.

For non-skiers, gear from the Hurricane Island Outward Bound School and other vendors will include snowshoes, rain gear, sleeping bags and other outdoor related equipment.

The sale, proceeds of which benefit area youth ski programs, will take place at the Gould Academy Field House, Friday evening Oct. 25 from 6:30 to 9 p.m., and Saturday Oct. 26 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Individuals may also bring equipment to sell, subject to a 15 percent consignment fee, anytime after 3 p.m. on Friday Oct. 25. Items must be priced on tickets provided by the Outing Club at the sale, or picked up at the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and filled out in advance. Persons or groups with more than five items for sale must obtain and complete their tickets prior to the sale.

The purpose of the Bethel Outing Club is to promote Nordic skiing and family-oriented outings with particular emphasis on youth ski programs.

FIREMEN'S APPRECIATION DAY

To the Editor:

The Bethel Fire Department and Pleasant River Campground of West Bethel are inviting western Maine firefighters and the public to a Firemen's Appreciation Day picnic this Sunday, Oct. 6 at noon until 5 p.m. Mike and Michelle Mador are hosting this event to celebrate the "mutual Aid" co-operation among area departments and the beginning of national Fire Prevention Week. It is intended to become an annual event of which this year is the first picnic at their Route 2 campground. Activities for all ages include horseshoes, volleyball, basketball, and playground. The campground is available to firemen and the public this day for free. Camping is also available for firemen and families at a 50 percent discount with reservations ahead.

A pig roast and barbeque of beans, hot dogs, and hamburgers are the main event of the picnic with food being served at 2 p.m. Pig roast meal tickets are available that day for adults at $6 and other food is priced moderately for everyone's enjoyment. Families can also bring their own picnic. For camping reservations, directions, and information call the Pleasant River Campground at 836-2000. Traveling firemen and their families are also welcome.

MORE PARKING IS LOGICAL AND FAIR

To the Editor:

We are pleased to see that the question of whether the town should expend $10,000 from the general fund to add on-street parking spaces to the west side of lower Main Street is on the town meeting warrant scheduled for Monday evening Oct. 7. As business owners and lower Main Street vicinity residents we support this proposal to add more on-street parking for a number of reasons, the most obvious one being that we recognize that increased parking on the street will make it easier for patrons of all lower Main Street businesses to visit restaurants, retailers and other businesses on this end of town. This section of Main Street is the only portion without on-street parking on both sides of the street (even though it has the highest density of businesses). It seems to us both logical and fair to add the parking.

That said, we recognize that adding the parking means losing what some see as critical "green space;" space that acts as a buffer from street noise for some residents, and as a welcoming swath of green at the village entrance for others. We realize that green space in the village is precious, and recognize that once it is gone it is hard to replace. We therefore support efforts to identify and preserve alternate green space in town in addition to adding the parking spaces.

Lastly, we have been accused by some of being "short sighted;" and looking for a "quick fix" to the parking problem. We wish for the public to know that we recognize that on-street parking will help ease parking congestion on lower Main Street but it won't solve it forever. We need to continue to promote and support alternate means of transportation such as Mountain Explorer Shuttle service during peak season. We need to support the newly formed parking committee's efforts to find solutions that balance the multiple views of the town. On a very practical level, we may need to build a larger parking lot behind our Main Street business. But, we also need and want to be sensitive to our residential neighbors. On Main Street at least, the parking is on a street Bethel's own residents have identified as commercial.

PARKING ARGUMENTS ARE STRETCHES

To the Editor:

Kudos to Jon Starr for his perceptive and wise commentary on the green areas of lower Main Street in last week's Citizen. I hope voters on Oct. 7 will follow that advice and defeat the motion to remove them and spend $10,000 in the process. We need to take a thoughtful look at all our parking possibilities before we arbitrarily eliminate one of those assets that help us claim to be in the Chamber of Commerce's promotional phrase "Maine's Most Beautiful Mountain Village."

David Lane's letter in the same issue misses several points. His commentary about my extolling the virtues of "a dead veteran" was lost in his verbiage about having two veterans alive in his house. It was precisely because Don Brown was not with us and in 1992 was a leader in the movement to save the green space that I believed the promise made to him and the rest of us should not be allowed to be so arbitrarily discarded.

In my experience, Mr. Lane's comments about safety also fall far from the mark. All one has to do is come out my driveway or off Mason street on to Broad Street with buses and vans parked right up to the entrances to know how limited the visibility is until one is quite far out into the line of traffic. The situation on lower Main Street would appear to be a similar experience if we succumb to asphalt.

One other point that advocates of removing the green area have continually labored is the number of parking places needed. They continually cite those required by the new restaurant opening in the building across the railroad tracks on Route 26 beyond the Java House. The Planning Board determined that the parking around the building was more than adequate there before the approval was granted. Besides, it is a bit of a "stretch" to think people would actually park on lower Main Street and walk way down there.

I hope that those concerned about the beauty of our village will join me in voting "no" on Oct. 7 at the town meeting. If we can prevail here, it will undoubtedly insure that a more expansive and considered look can be taken at what can be done to balance the needs of the automobile with preserving a precious resource that is nigh on to impossible to replace once it is gone.

FLOORSHOW THANKS

To the Editor:

Many thanks to the numerous citizens of Bethel who on Sept. 21 made the inaugural Antiques Floorshow at the Middle Intervale Meeting House a rousing success. A broad variety of interesting articles were brought for appraisal, including beautiful flint glassware, antique clocks and furniture, numerous early paintings and a quilt depicting U.S. presidents and generals of the early 19th century. It seemed particularly appropriate that many of the items presented dated from the early period when the Meeting House was a center of Bethel's community.

Mr. Kaja Veilleux, the appraiser, commented that he was seldom presented with such an interesting variety of antiques, which in turn made it possible for him to deliver a very entertaining and educational floorshow. He was also grateful for the high quality of volunteer help delivered by members of the MIMH Society, and I sincerely second that compliment to all those who participated.

ABOUT TAX CUTS

To the Editor:

In response to a letter in the Sunday, Sept. 8, 2002 Sun Journal by Harry Dwyer entitled "GOP Fat Cats," How about Jon Corzine, Democrat senator from New Jersey who spent $67 million (most of it his own) to win in the last election. Sounds like a fat cat to me. Senator Ted Kennedy, Democrat from Massachusetts, another fat cat. Let's face it, they are all fat cats and the Senate is evenly divided between the two major parties. This situation leads to voting themselves their own raises, healthcare and retirement and to all the "pork" they stuff every expenditure bill with. It's no wonder that federal and state government spending is out of control.

Now to tax cuts. Don't raise taxes during recessions. That only prolongs the economic downturn. Tax cuts actually provide governments with more tax revenue while at the same time providing a stimulus to the economy. President John F. Kennedy, a Democrat, cut taxes and government revenues increased in the following years. President Ronald Reagan, a Republican, also cut taxes with the same result. Tax cuts are not the problem, excessive government spending is.

Who pays taxes? Not everyone. Those making less than a minimum threshold pay no income taxes, both federal and state, and in addition receive other benefits such as Medicare/Medicaid, food stamps and subsidized housing, based quite often on incomes higher than these minimum thresholds. Only the middle class and the "rich" pay taxes. So let's give them a break because they will spend that money much more wisely than governments can and that will spur economic growth.

What are taxes? Taxes are the means by which governments raise revenue to operate the "necessary" programs that they do. Whether these functions are all even necessary or couldn't be done some other way is a debate for another time. Liberals in government have added a twist to taxation. They see taxes as a means to redistribute wealth in America. It's the Robin Hood approach, "take from the rich and give to the poor." Our great country was founded on freedom. Freedom to be all that one can be and to attain the highest income one can, legally, without interference. We must make sure that whatever laws, programs, etc., are passed continue to insure that freedom. JFK said it best, "Ask not what your government can do for you but what you can do for your country." Individual responsibility is the strength of our country and must be expected and demanded from all of us.

Votes

Chairman Dutch Dresser was the sole vote against the plan.

"I think this is a precipitous decision, and that we have to spend a little time thinking about the overall picture," said Dresser. "There are other ways to think about this puzzle and we should think about them."

There was no further discussion by the remaining selectmen, but Al Barth did note that at a Town Meeting voters had the option of requesting a secret ballot.

(In an informal straw poll at Monday's meeting, the five members of the Budget Committee who did attend voted 4-1 against the hangar purchase and 5-0 in favor of the increased parking.)

Monday's special Town Meeting will be held at the Crescent Park School, beginning at 7 p.m.

directly for after-hours calls. But with the change to 911, he said, "if someone picks up the phone and calls 911, that's got nothing to do with Sunday River anymore."

Collins said a new contract with PACE is in the works, one which will only cover recreation-related calls at the skiway. As for the other coverage, he said, "The state EMS created the conflict, and they need to fix it."

Dean Milligan of Med-Care said EMS had authorized him to tell Oxford County dispatch to switch over the responsibility for those calls to Med-Care.

But he said he wanted to consult the town and others involved, in the interest of preserving a good working relationship.

Med-Care can transport patients to either Rumford Hospital or Stephens Memorial Hospital, Milligan said.

The board decided to arrange a meeting among all parties concerned to discuss a possible solution.

More ATV complaints in Greenwood

GREENWOOD—A dispute between Patch Mountain Road resident Duane Hue and a Norway ATV Club landed in front of the Greenwood Board of Selectmen Tuesday evening. The selectmen expressed sympathy for the views of both parties but indicated there was little they could do to remedy the situation. Hue — who recently confronted and held for police two AVT-riding teens believed to have been responsible for a number of camp break-ins along the road — complained not only of break ins and theft, but also of the destruction he said is wrought by ATV users along the road. He asked the selectmen to consider closing at least the town maintained portion of the road to ATV use. But the selectmen said that portion of the road (approximately 1,000 feet at the beginning of the road) is already off limits to AVT's traveling more than 300 feet on it, which doesn't stop riders from using it. Illegal AVT operation has also been a chronic problem on the much more traveled (by cars and trucks) Greenwood Road, said selectmen Ken Roberts. "And if (police and game wardens) can't control them on the Greenwood Road, I don't think they can control them back in the woods." The ATV club representatives, however, saw the matter differently, claiming that Hue had been taking down signs the club puts up to keep riders on the trail. They asked the selectmen about to consider explicitly allowing ATV use on the town-maintained portion of the road (ATV use is legal on the discontinued sections, which make up most of the road). The selectmen said they'd probably be willing to consider such a move, but, Chairman Wayne Hakala said: "That would have to go before a Town Meeting, and I think you'd get blown out of the water." Throughout Tuesday's discussion there were comments indicating a shared belief that the club members were not the primary problem, rather it was the few "bad apples" — most of them teens — who were tarnishing the public's view of all ATV riders.

Man impersonates ACO

GREENWOOD—A man has been impersonating an animal control officer in an attempt to scam money, according to the Oxford County Sheriff's Department. ACO Ozzie Hart said he had received several complaints from residents Monday. It was reported a man approached people who had a dog loose in their yard, identified himself as an ACO, and told them they had to pay him $80 or he would take the dog. No one paid the man, and no dogs were taken. The man is described as 5-foot-8, about 150 pounds with dark hair and a beard. He was reportedly driving a blue Chevrolet Suburban or van. Residents are advised to ask for identification from anyone claiming to be a town officer. Identities may also be checked by calling the sheriff's office at 743-9554.

Road maintenance to resume

WOODSTOCK—Selectmen Tuesday voted to resume year-round maintenance on a 1,500-foot stretch of Lakeside Drive that extends to the Greenwood town line. The board met last week with landowner Bill Glad, who found through research that the section of road was closed by a town vote in 1949, but the description of the road portion was not clear. The vote was revisited in 1991, but town attorney Lee Bragg said the selectmen are not bound by that vote. The town will ditch, grade and gravel the road before winter.

Cummings closing after 142 years

NORWAY—C.B. Cummings & Sons Co. will close, after 142 years in the dowel-making business, the company announced last week. Cummings has enough orders for two or three more weeks of work for its 35 employees. Foreign competition was cited as the reason for the closing. The plant and its machinery will be sold at public auction in November, according to President Brad Cummings. Five years ago the company had 200 employees. It downsized then to try to stay competitive, but the closing of furniture companies in the Carolinas was the final blow, Cummings said.

Flag committee apologizes

RUMFORD—A controversy over the improper disposal of thousands of American flags is still raging on in Rumford. The flags' donors were promised their flags would be given a proper retirement by being burned. Instead, the flags ended up in a landfill in Bethlehem, N.H. Monday night, the group that collected the flags, the September Eleven Remembrance Day Committee, issued a statement apologizing for incident. But the committee did not explain why the mistake occurred. Rumford's town manager, Robert Welch, says efforts were made last week to retrieve the flags, but only two of them were found. Welch says he plans to hold a proper flag retirement ceremony for those two flags at a future date.

License suspended after fatal crash

AUGUSTA—The driving license of Joshua Mason, who was driving a vehicle in which a young Norway man lost his life in August, has been suspended. Mason's truck rolled into a ditch in Mechanic Falls Aug. 5. Travis Van Durme, 18, was killed and Brett Jackson, 18, of Oxford was injured. Assistant District Attorney Joseph O'Connor asked that the Secretary of State suspend Mason's license because of numerous charges of driving to endanger and for medical reasons. Mason's trial, scheduled for early September, has been delayed because he claimed he was medically unable to participate. The license was suspended for medical reasons. The Secretary of State's office is still reviewing the request to suspend the license based on the driving record.

Sheriff's office adds tip line

PARIS—The Oxford County Sheriff's Office has introduced an anonymous tip line into their automated phone system. When a person wishes to leave a tip, they will contact the Sheriff's Office on a non-emergency line 1-800-733-1421 or 743-9554, and follow the directions of the menu to obtain the tip line. Citizens have been requesting a way to provide information, according to Sheriff Skip Herrick. Although the line is anonymous, callers may leave their names and phone numbers and the information will be kept confidential. The line will be checked regularly and each tip will be followed up. The sheriff encourages the public to use the new technology.

Foliage Flotilla Saturday

BETHEL—The annual Fabulous Fall Foliage Flotilla, a canoe trip on the Androscoggin River from Bethel to Hanover, will take place Saturday, Oct. 5 at 10 a.m. Anyone wishing to participate may put-in at Bethel Outdoor Adventures on Route 2. Canoeists provide their own canoe, personal flotation device and lunch (call 824-2410 to register).

Cancer spokeschild has local tie

CAPE ELIZABETH—The granddaughter of several former Bethel residents is serving this year as "Sluggers Kid," spokesperson for the Strike Out Cancer in Kids (SOCK) program of the Portland Sea Dogs. Clarice Diebold, 7, has pleural pulmonary blastoma, a very rare form of lung cancer. She is the great-granddaughter of Charles and Mary Keoskie and the granddaughter of Ted White and Carol Morin. Clarice has undergone extensive treatments, some experimental, since she was 3. She has been cancer-free for 17 months. Clarice has done a number of television spots promoting SOCK, which surpassed the $1 million mark in donations this year.

Kimball benefit planned

GREENWOOD—A benefit pig roast for Amos Kimball will take place Saturday, Oct. 5 at 6 p.m. at American Legion Post 81 in Locke Mills. Kimball has been unable to work since breaking his neck Aug. 17. A $10 donation is requested for the dinner, which will include roast turkey, baked beans, salads, rolls, coffee, lemonade and desserts. (BYOB). Entertainment will be provided by Jewel Clark and Friends.

Coach

In any demanding sport, an athlete's ability to perform is directly linked to their aerobic ability, their ability to effectively pump blood, rich with oxygen, to the muscles doing the work.

When demands are placed on the athlete's body that go beyond that ability, the exercise is no longer aerobic, it is anaerobic (without oxygen). Anaerobic demands are not bad in themselves, Taylor said, and they are often part of intense, exciting sport. But when an athlete places anaerobic demands on his body too soon, without the ample aerobic base work beneath them, the demands simply exhaust a youngster. "They empty his well, day after day, before it has been dug deeply enough to have real capacity for energy supply and rapid renewal."

Many kids, relying on their innate survival instincts, turn away from athletics because of this physical abuse to their bodies. Kids that continue to compete never have opportunity to discover their potential for grace, endurance, and speed, Taylor said. Their training and competition schedules drain their resources rather than develop their abilities and joy in sport.

This physical punishment of growing athlete's body flies in the face of sound sports science, Taylor said. It denies the medical research into how children's bodies mature. And this perpetuation of sports culture's myth — that constant competition and self-sacrifice make skilled athletes — is most often carried out in elementary, middle, and high schools.

Measures of success

"Winning is measured in terms of 'who you be.' The measure for winning and winning competitors is basically external," Taylor said. "Kids who are solely win oriented measure their ranking relative to their peers, and failure is a sign that they don't have ability."

"We run them dry with an emphasis on competition that produces a pattern of external motivations, external measures of success. The way we do it now isn't good physically or emotionally. The three sport athlete is, for some, the ultimate physical specimen. But when the vast majority of three-sport athletes finish high school, they're really not in very good shape relative to what the need to be to compete through college and beyond."

It doesn't have to be this way, though. When kids' training is designed for their progressive improvement, the motivation becomes internal. "They own it," Taylor said. "They thrive on the feeling of growing grace and power, even in the smallest increments, so they seem to feed on learning to do it better. These kinds of kids seldom worry, and they rarely doubt they will improve."

History of sports culture

"No Pain, No Gain?" contains three sections. The first section provides information for athletes, coaches, and parents about how children's bodies mature and what type of training regimens are successful.

The second section is the history of sports culture. "You can't talk about sports reasonably unless you talk about sports science," Taylor said. "And you can't talk about sports science reasonably unless you talk about sports culture and the cultural values in which sports science is applied."

Taylor's book tracks the history of American sports culture, from the biblical separation of the holy spirit and sinful body, to the immigration waves of the early 1900's, when athletics were based on a military model of patriotism and self-sacrifice.

"When you run soldiers up the hill," Taylor said, "that's brave and honorable. But how many do you leave at the top?"

"When we run athletes up the hill of constant competition, how many of them do we leave at the top? The idea that sports has anything to do with conquering an enemy is just junk. There's no moral superiority gained in beating an opponent."

Taylor's many fans in the Nordic skiing world (see sidebar) won't be disappointed, for the third section contains a detailed look at Nordic training.

"No Pain, No Gain?" is available from Books 'N Things in Bethel; or by mail from The Mechanic Street Press; P.O. Box 16; Bethel, ME 04217. Enclose $30 for the book and $5 postage and handling. Maine residents should add 5-percent sales tax.

Fellow coaches agree

By REBECCA ZICARELLI

Nordic coaches and experts are paying attention to Dick Taylor's new book, "No Pain, No Gain?"

Tracey Cote, head coach of men's and women's Nordic skiing at Colby College, said "I've read Dick Taylor's book and think it's incredible."

Taylor's "overall approach to training young athletes is invaluable," Cote said. "As a college coach recruiting Gould skiers, I've been amazed at how excited the Gould skiers are after four years of ski training under Taylor. They not only perform well, but they absolutely love the sport."

Cote knows first hand the training problems Taylor addresses. "It's still all too common to see burned-out skiers by the time they come to college. Taylor's book provides a philosophy that I believe will help parents, athletes, and coaches prevent this from happening. I think this book is as important for all endurance sports as it is for the sport of Nordic Skiing."

Jon Quinn-Hurst is program director at the Alaska Pacific College Nordic Skiing Center (APUNSC) in Anchorage, Alaska. APU is turning out some of the best American racers in the sport. According to the center's website, "Athletes from the APUNSC program make up 33% of the U.S. World Championship Team."

Quinn-Hurst said the problems Taylor identified that keep American athletes from reaching their full potential extend to college programs. "The governing body of skiing at the top collegiate level prevents year-around coaching and thus optimal development of domestic athletes. This is another unintended yet negative affectation of the American sports model. There are serious efforts to address the shortcomings of the American sports culture, and Dick Taylor's rational and thoughtful work in 'No Pain, No Gain?' provides a foundation for a reasonable assessment of where we are and what we can do to make athlete development better for the athletes."

Marty Hall, Nordic coach at Bowden College, called Taylor's book thought provoking. "We're on the same page when it comes to technique," he said.

Hall also said that the slow change in training attitudes is a result of the distances coaches must travel to gather together in this country. "In Norway, they'll have a coaches' meeting, and half the coaches will drive, the other half takes a train. They can all meet two or three times a year. In this country, you may get 2 to 3 percent of the high-school coaches at a meeting. The rest will read, but they won't go."

Taylor's book, Hall said, is all the more important for those high-school coaches, because they're the people who train most of the athletes entering the field, and there are no education certifications required of them.

Len Johnson, once an elite Nordic competitor, trains world-class athletes and runs Jenex, Inc., which supplies equipment to skiers at the top-levels of competition. "This book is not just for coaches. Parents and every serious skier and runner should read this book. 'No Pain, No Gain?' is not just about training; it's much more than that. It's about our culture, a way of living. I think it's the best training book for cross-country skiing published to date."

Most of the experts agree on one thing — Taylor's book is not an easy read. It challenges readers to examine their basic assumptions about sports, to question what they've long taken for granted.

"I feel it is a 'wise' book, a challenging book on every level," said Fred Griffen, executive director of the New England Nordic Ski Association (NENSA). "I'm still working through it, still experiencing Taylor's new ways of looking at old issues. Seldom do I turn a page without me pausing to weigh something he has said. His analogies are fresh, incisive, and well worth pondering. I recommend the book to any serious coach."

Patrick Cote, NENSA program director, trained under Taylor for ten years, and knows Taylor's methods first hand. "I believe that Taylor's philosophy toward training and performance does create long-term success for athletes. He leads parents, athletes, and coaches through the how's and why's of training from the historical and scientific perspectives and critically examines the way we train young athletes. Taylor's book provides a much needed voice in our search to understand the best way to allow our athletes to succeed in the long-term."

wards this objective will be the relocation of a substantial amount of equipment and production capacity from our Westbrook and Rumford locations to Locke Mills. This shift is largely due to the fact that our current manufacturing capacity exceeds our sales volume. In addition, Saunders Brothers will expand its use of global sources to provide the best possible mix of quality, responsiveness and cost. This restructuring will begin with the discontinuance of our sawmill operations and the purchase of raw materials from outside vendors upon approval of terms. Over the course of the succeeding six to eight months, personnel and equipment from our Westbrook and Rumford locations will be moved to Locke Mills. During this process, Saunders Brothers' goals are to minimize any negative impact to our employees and to make these changes transparent to our customers. To that end, the company is working with the State to ensure that all possible services and benefits will be made available to employees as their jobs are transferred, as well as offering interested employees jobs at other company facilities."

Saunders Brothers currently produces plugs, buttons, table pins, commercial dowels, specialty dowels and a variety of other wood products.

In one sense, the relocation is a return closer to the company's roots. The first Saunders Brothers woodworking mill was established by Harry and Arthur Saunders a century ago in North Waterford.

The company's first major product was lollipop sticks.

Stump dump

lems with people dumping brush and garbage on his own property. "And every time we make things more restrictive, the worse it gets," he said.

Others said it would be just as costly to dispose of the wood by having it hauled from the transfer station.

There could be other obstacles to maintaining the dump operation, however. Woodstock selectman Steve Bies said if hazardous waste contamination is ever found in the pit, the ashes and about six inches of soil beneath would have to be hauled away to Texas for disposal — at a possible cost of $10,000.

The most common contaminant is lead from painted wood. Bies said such wood has been banned from the dump for several years.

Selectman Mike Nadeau expressed concern that "one mistake by the attendant" in letting contaminated wood slip by could be costly.

Another issue the town faces is the need to get a variance from the state to operate an upgraded stump dump. Wayne Hakala, the chairman of the Greenwood Board of Selectmen, said the variance would be required because of the site's proximity to homes and an old landfill.

"I think the key is the variance," he said, because nothing else can proceed without it.

Residents agreed it should first be determined if a variance can be obtained. They also decided it was equally important to test the current pit to see if there is contamination from old burning.

Compost the wood?

Hakala then opened a whole new line of discussion. "I'd like to see a composting pit there," he said.

That brought a quick reaction from Mitch Miller, who said he had recently completed a course in composting. He said wood can be composted, along with residential and school food waste. "Then you can sell (the compost) for $10 a yard," he said.

The operation would require a chipper for the wood and a bucket-loader to move the material, he said, but grant money may be available for startup costs.

Marie Bartlett said the town of Denmark has a composting operation that then offers the material back to residents for free. "They can't keep up with the demand," she said.

Norm Milliard said turning to composting would require educating residents. And, he said, "We need cost comparisons."

Greenwood selectman Fred Henderson suggested the towns continue to burn, but investigate going to a composting operation as soon as practical.

The hour-long meeting concluded with G&W committee members saying they would first research the variance issue and arrange to have the pit tested.

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham
This is a remake of last week and this week because my last column disappeared into cyberspace. That shouldn't happen, or so they say, but we all know that it does. It did.

Last Sunday, Sept. 22, we went to the Common Ground Fair. It was a nice mellow day, albeit a little hot for my liking, but there was a breeze and we were outside. The food was good — much that I could eat and even some to David's more traditional fast food American liking. There was music and all kinds of exhibits from the political to the bizarre. We enjoyed the energy exhibits and the crafts. We scouted out the pottery for some ideas and prices for bowls. A good time was had by all. I even got an herbal take on my health care. It made more sense than the pill poppers because it was more holistic, treating me rather than a few symptoms. We shall see which prevails.

I promised to tell more about the wedding of Carrie and Daniel Hart. It was a very nice affair, taking place at Agassiz Village in Poland. The food was great; the place was beautiful and accommodating to all. The crowd seemed to enjoy themselves. The wedding service, itself was very well done. The DJ played music that was varied enough to be to everyone's liking. Most importantly, the bride and groom were very happy and all wished them well.

Tasha had been misbehaving, but I am happy to report that she is back in my good graces. She is home where she prefers to be because she knows how to behave and what is happening. Believe it or not, she is getting on in her years — she still thinks she is a puppy and behaves that way sometimes, but she must be at least nine by now. If I move, she will have the hardest time of it.

Faith and Phil of Black Bear B&B may pack up and leave us in the near or not so near future. We shall miss them. They have put the inn on the market and await its sale. It is sad but probably what is best for them. Seems like only yesterday they just got here and stated fixing up the inn. I'll keep you posted. Anyone want to buy an inn in fairly good shape with a swimming pool, tennis and garden space?

Elsewise, all seems quiet in the Valley. I haven't heard the coyotes these last few nights. It is the end of the garden season and I am harvesting winter squash, Red cabbage and pumpkins will be next as well as brussels sprouts.

I was very lucky this weekend. Friend David organized a work party and when I returned home from work, my wood was all stacked. Thanks guys! Now I just have to finish paying for it. Hopefully this week.

This is all for this week. It promises to be hot again this week. Go figure. June we have frosts and in Sept., the first day of fall, even, it is 90....Winter will be here soon enough so I shouldn't complain about a few overly warm days in fall. Still, I'd rather it was a bit cooler during the day. Classrooms are still hot most afternoons and it is hard to learn at those temperatures. In any case, have a good week and enjoy the sunny days and the cooler nights and enjoy this lovely fall.

They say the leaves are changing color. Most of the leaves I see are rather dull in color; there is no brightness to them at all.

Mason Township

It seems like we've been busy the past couple of weeks, but not much worthy of writing about is going on. Rupert Junior hired an excavator to dig out the little farm pond by the side of the road while it was dry (almost). Now they have a nice round-bottom bowl, with granite trim and almost no water. If they concreted the bottom, it would make a nice skateboard rink! Of course, it is going to rain significantly one of these days, and there will be water aplenty, I hope.

A couple weeks ago Snuffy and I went on an overnight backpack trip, where we started at Evans Notch and headed for Pinkham Notch. This is a distance of just over 20 miles as we planned it. Upon completion, I decided that I need to shorten my planned distances per day from 10 miles to something like 7 or 8; that 40+ pound pack begins to tire these old legs after seven or eight miles. Our trip was pretty uneventful, except for the ground hornets. When we set up camp along the headwaters of Wild River, it was getting pretty dusky. I threw a rope over a leaning tree with the intention of hanging my food bag high enough in the air to be out of reach of critters overnight. As I was trying to tie the bag to the rope in the near darkness, I heard a threatening buzzing, but I couldn't see anything. Suddenly, I got stung on my left forearm and quickly decided to vacate that spot. Next morning, I saw Snuffy sniffing around that area. Pretty soon, I saw him jump and snap at the air. It didn't take him long to make the same decision I had made the night before!

Last Friday, Mona and I headed for Machias for another CAP training mission. After driving nearly all day in a light drizzle, we set up our camper at Machias airport, next to the only building there, a combination airport headquarters and CAP squadron meeting place. At least, they had electricity we could tap for our camper. That evening, we were getting better acquainted with some of the Machias CAP Squadron members. Captain Wayne Merritt, the CAP squadron commander, related the following incident which occurred last June when he took a van full of cadets to the Air Force Museum at Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio. He said that after one visit to the museum, he and the cadets returned to their motel parking lot. As the cadets got out of the van, they started running helter-skelter across the lot toward the motel. Before Wayne could yell and get them stopped, one of the cadets ran smack into a fellow riding a bicycle, having just come down a small hill. Both the cadet and the cyclist flew to the asphalt. After seeing that the cadet received only minor bruises, they turned their attention to the cyclist, who by now was getting up. This man was pretty disheveled, having lost his toupee and received a large gash in his scalp, which was bleeding profusely. As Wayne and a couple cadets tried to help the man regain his composure and his wig, a good size bag of pot fell out of his (the cyclist's) pocket. Wayne offered to call for medical assistance for the gash in the fellow's scalp, but the guy put his pot back into his

by Sharon Bouchard

Sharon Bouchard's column is published by special arrangement with the Advertising Department of this newspaper.

Life certainly does have its little embarrassing moments, doesn't it? I have had more than my share of these times.

Recently, I bumped into an acquaintance in a shopping center parking lot. We struck up a conversation as I was headed for my car. We stood in front of my car and chatted for a few minutes. I excused myself after a while and got in the car to take off. I thought of something else I wanted to tell this person, so I rolled the window down and called her back. She walked up to my window, I said what I had wanted to tell her and then she asked me if there was any special reason I was sitting in the back seat of my car.

I tried to cover up as quickly as I could by saying I was looking for something I thought was in the back seat, but the fact that I was still holding my car keys in front of me as in an effort to start the car, made my excuse seem exactly what it was, an excuse.

I'm sure all men have experienced open fly at the most inopportune times and most women can relate to the gaping blouse or dress. When that happens to me it is usually when I am wearing one of my worst bras that's held together with safety pins and duct tape.

I know of no women who are not familiar with the creeping pantyhose syndrome. We have all had that saggy baggy situation and the feel of the pantyhose creeping down over our hips. At any given moment there are women all over the world who are ducking behind filing cabinets or seeking out secluded corners to hoist up their drooping nylons.

I had this problem a couple of years ago as I was walking up Main Street on my way to work. There were no filing cabinets or secluded corners in which to seek relief. Oh no, I was right out there on the busiest street in town at the busiest time of the day.

I did try casually grasping the waistband through my dress after checking to see if anyone was looking, but this didn't work. I tried squeezing my thighs together before the situation got totally out of control, but that just made me walk very funny.

I was doomed. Once those pantyhose dropped below my butt, they were gone, just like an over stretched rubber band. Those darn things dropped down below my knees so fast I nearly fell on my face. What could I do? I was too far away to duck walk all the way to my office. I looked around hoping no one was paying attention to me and I kicked my shoes off and quickly removed the offending stockings and stuffed them into my pocket book.

Life certainly does have its little embarrassing moments, doesn't it? I have had more than my share of these times.

Oh, but wait, the embarrassment didn't end there. Later that day I had to go to the supermarket. I was at the checkout with everyone in town standing in line behind me and what do you suppose I had forgotten was in my pocket book that I had to pull out in front of everyone just to get to my money? I don't wear pantyhose now any more than I absolutely have to.

That was embarrassing, but I don't think I have ever been more red-faced then one time in a very busy restaurant when I came out of the ladies room waving a toilet paper tail behind me.

That in itself would have been enough to crumble the toughest of people, but to have some schmuck with a very loud voice call across the room "Hey lady, you've got toilet paper hanging out of the back of your pants," is enough to make anyone want to die on the spot.

I was so embarrassed I tucked my tail between my legs and got to heck out of that restaurant in a hurry!

That little "embarrassing moment" is tops on my list, but running a close second is the time I inadvertently tucked the back of my skirt into my underwear and walked around that way for at least a half hour before I felt a draft and realized something was wrong.

I know I'm not alone in making a fool of myself. Everyone has their most "embarrassing moments" stories to tell only they're usually too embarrassed to tell them.

How many times have you tripped over nothing and then looked around to see if anyone was watching? Or those times in a public place when gas couldn't be held back and you just prayed no one could link it to you?

Or those times you quickly put on your pants only to have the underwear you previously had on come of your pant leg in front of someone?

I even know a couple of people who have gone through a car wash with their windows open. Their only saving grace was that they were not in a convertible.

It's too bad any of us have to ever get caught with our flies down or our blouses open, but that's partly what makes life so interesting.

I'm sure I still have some "embarrassing moments" waiting for me in the years ahead. But, the way I see it, as long as they don't involve toilet paper tails, I'll probably live to tell about them.

"An Ode to October"

The maples, sumac flaming red beneath October's glance, whistle a tune for falling leaves, a wiggle and dance. The month of blue skies and gold. No other month brings to the world such changes to manifold. O, how could words of glens resist October's wiles and charms as wrapping them in silver haze. Every season has its pleasures. Spring may boast her flowery prime, yet the vineyard's ruby treasures brighten autumn's calm time.

My guardian angels are at it again. They gave me vegetables, soup, fruits and something to read. God bless them all.

Call to worship at the Newry Community Church was held Sunday morning at 9 a.m., with Pastor Rodney Hanscom at the pulpit and daughter Nancy at the organ. "Praise and Song for our God and Savior." Prayer, hymn sing, benediction and postlude. Amen.

A 16th birthday party and cook-out for Katy Gasdik was held at the home of John and Nancy Wight, Saturday, Sept. 28. Terri Littlehale and Brenda Wight each made a birthday cake.

Katy mother Liz, brother Joey, and cousin Shawn from Pennsylvania were here to visit also for Katy birthday. Other guest was Brad, Brenda, Kurt Wight, Retta Berry, Ed Power, Steve, Terri Littlehale and Staci Jason and Sarah Berry and John and Nancy. Sending gifts were Michael Wight, Katie and Kevin Wight and Mandy Berry.

POSTMASTER RETIRES
Arnold E. Jordan of Greenwood recently retired from the U.S. Postal Service on Sept. 27 after 17 years of duty. Jordan began as a part-time clerk in Mexico and served as Officer-in-Charge in Newry, Oquossoc, Phillips and Poland. He also worked in many neighboring towns before becoming Postmaster of North Waterford Post Office on Nov. 10, 1995. A life long resident of Greenwood; Jordan is an active member of the Locke Mills Union Church and enjoys singing with the Oxford Hills Hills-men Chorus as well as the Barbershop Quartet: The County Chords. Both groups can be heard harmonizing this week at the Fryeburg Fair.

like to extend an invitation to anyone interested in what this organization contributes to the community to attend. They are always open to new members of any age, including new residents who may bring fresh ideas for aiding our town. At the present time there are only seven dedicated members. Why not give it a try?

I would like to remind you "that marriage is an institution, and who wants to live in an institution?" But anyway if you are thinking of getting married, the state of Maine has revised some of the laws about marriage. Old Law—you had to file your intentions in the town that you lived in, for instance, if the bride lived in Mexico and the groom in Rumford you had to file in both places. New law—you can now file in just one town, Rumford or Mexico. Old law—if you resided out of state, but for some silly reason wanted to be married in Maine you had to file papers in the town where the ceremony was taking place. New law—you can now file your notice of intentions at any municipal office in the state, and get hitched anywhere in the state you little heart desires. Old law—there used to be a three day waiting period between filing and the time the marriage could take place. Not anymore, you can get married as soon after filing as you can bear to do it. And last, but not least, if you were thinking of having a justice of the peace marry you, think again, they can't do it anymore. Oh, by the way, there is now a 21-day waiting period before a person can be remarried in the state of Maine following a Maine divorce. These changes went into effect in July, 2002. Just remember what I said about institutions.

Birthday celebrants for the upcoming week include Leo Om-brello and Edna Hilton on the 4th, Lola Purcell on the 5th, Polly Ann Johnson, and Travis Sims, on the 6th, Andrea Savitz, Joshua Thurston and Jerome Herrick on the 7th, Erica Morin, Jayme Wardwell and Gerry Michaud on the 8th, Brenda Bailey and Dennis Bodemer on the 9th, and Vickie Meisner and Maria Cornwell on the 10th. Anniversaries: Frances and Paul Nevel, Paulette and Scott Tabb on the 4th, Sharon and Mark Farrington and Lois and Steve Nevel on the 6th, Emily and Arthur Clifford on the 7th.

Robert and Violet Swain have returned from Richmond, Va., where they attended his 11th Troop Carrier Squadron reunion.

Donna Meisner has purchased the late F. Grace Simmons' trailer. Her late parents formerly owned and operated the Andover Telephone Company.

Robert and Violet Swain joined some of his classmates from classes 1936, 1937 and 1938 from Gould Academy for a luncheon on Sept. 27 at the Philbrook Farm in Shelburne, N.H.

Daniel White, who grew up in East Andover, has purchased the late Vivian Barlow property. His twin brother, David, resides in Andover. He also joins his parents and other sisters in East Andover.

At a recent annual meeting of Chapter Seven of the Maine Chapter of the 1918 Club in Saco, Violet Swain was elected for the 15th time to serve as president and Bill Smith was elected vice president. He has served that office since 1990.

The word for the week is "mundane." Look it up. See 'ya.

Last weeks correspondence was dashed off in a hurry. We had just traveled eleven hours from Parrsboro Nova Scotia and we were, to put it mildly, "Pooped".

The Handicap Ramp at the Ladies Aid was constructed while we were away. It has now been completed. The garden in front of the building was replaced and looks wonderful. Roger Lavalley and Christine Adams removed all the Perennials and replanted them. They also purchased new plants and mulch. We thank them for this service. Nicolas Lavalley also assisted in the building construction. The Ladies Aid financed the project. All those yard sales and bake sales were worth the work that went into them. The place looks great.

Last week Fred Judkins was feted at an 86th birthday party at Market Square. Cake and Ice Cream were enjoyed by family and friends. Those attending were Marian York (age 97), Rev Edgar Bailly and his wife Ruth, Judy Bennett, Debbie Judkins and others. They were entertained by "Gus" the One Man Band. His wife served sparkling cider to the happy group.

This morning I was saddened to hear of the death of a long time friend, Eunice Thurston of Errol. She was a beautiful, tiny little lady with a great big heart. She and Norman had been married for over 60 years. We will miss her.

The lake rose a little with the rainfall last week, but it's still very low. With the good weather prevailing on Sunday, there were quite a few boats on the lake. Monday was the last day of the fishing season so I gave it one more try and caught a Yellow Perch on the first cast. He had a sore mouth when I released him, but he will be back to be snagged again.

Saturday Sept. 27 we experienced our first frost. The temperature went down to 31 degrees briefly. The squash in Buster Williams' garden were nipped but everything else was fine.

This is probably the latest frost date we have seen in over thirty years. The foliage is still quite green, with an occasional yellow or red leaf tree. The "Leaf Peepers" will have to wait another week or two for a good show. Kermit the frog sang, "It aint easy being green", but he didn't live in Upton. It's like waiting for the axe to fall. Very soon we will be "White" again.

The birds are pretty consistent with the season. The geese are still honking and departing in high vee flocks. The ducks will hang around until "ice in". On the lawn we saw lots of flickers and doves. The small song birds must be taking advantage of the plants that have gone to seed, because very few are at the feeder.

Barbara Stratton had a pileated woodpecker and a spruce grouse at Birch Point. The robins are scarce.

The Mountain Ash Berries are ripe so they may be back soon. The ground is hard and dry from the summer drought that makes for pretty poor "worming".

The pileated woodpecker is the "Bird of the Week". You don't see them very often and it certainly is a thrill to see this colorful crow size bird. His yacking call resounds through the woods. This fellow is often shy and very mobile when folks are around. Although he is primarily a forest bird, he has recently adapted his habitat to the outskirts of large cities. He can make quite a mess as he tears rectangular excavations from trees. Take a woods walk and maybe you'll see the "log cock" or "cock of the woods", as he is known in our north country.

Happy Birthday to Joy Yarnell who turned 39 again last week!!

Sorry about no news last week but even the e-mail doesn't work if one doesn't use it.

No, really. Yes, really. I was preparing to go upstate to attend my daughter's 25th wedding anniversary celebration and I take my whole closet and half my house when I travel. It never seems to occur to me that most of my house stuff is probably in my daughter's house or at least obtainable at the local store. I am some better than I used to be because now I only have a weekend bag, albeit chuck full, and a tote, besides my pocketbook, which most people know contains ten pounds of stuff. I also took a heavy fall jacket. Of course the weather was about as warm and humid as it is in Bermuda, which is where it probably came from.

Ralph came from his home in Vermont on Thursday and we both took off on Friday. We went to Lewiston and picked up the interstate there, which I wouldn't do again. I thought it wouldn't take much more time — stupid me, and I do so hate that intersection in Skowhegan. But I wasn't driving so it shouldn't have mattered. We got to Presque Isle just in time to go with Marcia to help decorate the church's multifunction room for the morrow. Jane Smith was in charge of the decorating and she has a gift for it. We all ate a pick-up meal afterward.

The next day was a busy one but everything went off with nary a hitch except I left my earrings at Marcia's and luckily she mothered herself well because she left something behind, also, so Ralph took me back home to get it — a minor glitch. Oh yes, one of the songs they picked for during the ceremony didn't want to play, but as Marcia's father always said, it wouldn't feel right if something didn't foul up on special occasions such as this.

The food table was laden with goodies — the Smiths all being good cooks — so one wouldn't think anyone would have been hungry that evening but we were, so Jon took us all out to eat at the Governor's.

Sunday, Ralph took us all out to eat at a local breakfast bar, and then we headed for home.

Tuesday, Marcia and Jon came down to see Andy and took us all out to eat at a local restaurant. They stayed overnight at an inn in Bethel and then headed back up the pike. Ralph left that afternoon, also, so things are getting back to as normal as it ever is around here.

Have you seen the new carpet on the floor at the Tri-Town Rescue Building at Trap Corner given by the kindness of Evelyn T. Bean?

Curator Larry Billings has a book on formal country antiques and feels that is what the Historical Society has. They are somewhat better than plain country antiques and usually have fancy accessories with them. Certainly the society's collections qualify. The furniture is very good country furniture and there are many fancy small antiques in addition. Larry doesn't want to belabor formal country as a label too much, but it is a useful handle. The Historical Society has an ideal museum. Its exhibits are outstanding and it has a fine research library and museum store. You can find something of everything there, so come to a meeting soon and find out for yourself. The curator recently attended a service at the West Paris Universalist Church. He has donated some items to the Historical Society and filed them in its museum. They include a photo of playwright Lillian Hellman, another of New York socialite Kitty Carlisle Hart, a sketch of naturalist Audubon and other things. The two ladies mentioned were very elegant, cultivated personalities and Kitty Carlisle was chairman of the New York Council on the Arts as well as a TV personality. He also gave a rare tea leave ironstone pitcher and piece of stained glass. The society now has a superb collection. Don't neglect its offerings. You can join the society and make a big difference.

Finally, we have finished redoing a bedroom. It has been quite a process, but it sure looks nice now. It was worth all the work. Thanks for help from my brother, Phelps.

Pete Appleby went bear hunting for a day last week. He stopped in early one morning before heading out.

I made a trip to Lewiston to see Dr. DeSai at the Kidney Center. The traffic was real heavy, as they are still working on the overpass on Main Street, Lewiston.

While I was in the pet store in Norway, a lady came in with a pigeon with a broken wing. I then took her to the vet's in Norway where they will keep it and try to fix the wing.

Merle and Elizabeth Blazier have returned home from their camp on Roxbury Pond after spending some time there.

Cylas Cash is working at Lee Auto in Norway as a mechanic.

The leaves are changing quite a bit. I love the autumn but dread to think of what's nearly here.

Mollycokett Motel has been sold. Don and Virginia Mason ran the motel for many years until Don's death. We wish the new owners the best of luck with the business.

Tommy Poland and Cleo Ryerson took a ride up to Gallant's Furniture Store in Roxbury. They went out to lunch after and also stopped at Ames to see if anything was left on sale.

Happy birthday to those celebrating in October. They are: Dustin Tilley, Aaron Bean, Lindsey Record, Rosalie Poland, Karon Wing, Laurie Cox, Roger Wilday, Jeannie Grover, Virginia Mason, Jerrold Mason, Lisa Ryerson, Matthew Ryerson, Chad Ryerson, Rhonda Yap, Benjamin Yap, Brandon Yap, Chris Canulli, Don Mason Jr. and Darren Brown.

Anniversaries celebrated this month are: Jim and Evelyn Dunn, Pat and Wayne Lawrence, Bruce and Donna Danforth, Ernie and Rhonda Yap, Robert and Margie Gleason. Best wishes to you all.

Larry Billings, curator of the Woodstock Historical Society, reports that he has given a Maine book, an account of the Eisenhower Administration and a tin with floral decoration to the museum. Mr. Billings has also given the museum a pair of rare Wedgwood plates. The society's collections are now very fine, and the clothespin sign in the parking lot is a real landmark. Our society has now truly come of age.

Brad Payne and friend, Rodney Gammon, went fishing in Rangeley last weekend.

Fay Holt and Ann Payne visited with Colista Morgan. She is getting along well.

They are making good progress on the sand shed and the pad for the compactor should be in place now.

We had another gathering Saturday. Lillian and Glenn Strout of Pownal, Troy Cogswell and friend Amy, Tyler Green of Freeport, Mary Strait and friend from Auburn, Walter Curtis and sons Keith and Kevin of Norway, Carol and Betty Curtis and sons Timothy and Kenneth and friend, Marie and Albert Curtis and Fred Curtis all joined the party.

My son called me from Kentucky and said that the bad storm they had in Indiana just barely missed my granddaughter's place.

My daughter, Colista Cogswell, didn't come up with the others. She stayed home to rest, as she wasn't feeling very well but is better now.

Until next time, have a safe and happy week.

The West Paris Grange #298 met in regular session on Thursday, Sept. 19 at their hall on Church Street, West Paris. They held their September monthly supper on Saturday, Sept. 21. Their monthly supper for October will be a Harvest Supper with pies for dessert and will be from 5-6 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 19. The price will be $5 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12.

On Sunday afternoon, Sept. 22, the West Paris Girl Scout Troop #1113 met at the West Paris Baptist Church from 1-5 p.m. for luncheon and a scrap booking class to earn the "Scrapbooking Badge." We also pinned the previously earned Badges on the vests. What a good group of girls we have. They have been a real pleasure to work with.

The West Paris Senior Citizens will meet at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 8, at the West Paris Baptist Church and go as a group to "Northlands" in Berlin, N.H. for their monthly luncheon and meeting and then come home by a different route and be "leaf peepers." We hope for good weather and lots of color that day.

The Eastwind Gospel Quartet of Auburn will present a musical program at 7 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 6. Come on out and bring your family and friends for a wonderful evening of music at West Paris Baptist Church, 16 Church St.

The West Paris Grange will hold its annual Flu Shot clinic from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 30 at their Grange Hall, 6 Church St., West Paris. The Medicare and Medicaid recipient shots are free. All others, $8 per shot. Bethel Health Clinic personnel will give the shots as in the past. See you all next week.

I need to make a correction. In last week's news the date for the next Historical Society meeting should have said October 21 and not the 24th Goodwill Fellowship met last Monday evening with Joyce Lamb with 9 members present.

It was decided to have our Fall Sale on November 9. The next meeting and potluck supper will be with Eleanor Inman on October 28. The Annual Chicken Pie supper will be planned. We are sorry to hear that Albert Penley, Sr "Gramp" is a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital. Hope his stay will not be too long. Vern and Miriam entertained at a cookout at camp on Hick's Pond last Thursday evening.

Those present were: Norma Colby, Kay Lawson, Jeanette O'Neil, Phyllis Young, Babe Hanson, Ben Grover, Pete Andrews, Jim and Dottie Brown, Martha Dunn and Bill Harmon. It was a pleasant evening with music and singing. Paul and Ginger Dunham visited her mother Sally Doughty and Eino Rosenberg last Sunday. Douglas and Kathy Perham are here with Joe and Peg Perham to attend the Fryeburg Fair. Joyce Lamb's home was the scene of a party for the twin's 7th birthday on Saturday. The twin's are Carolyn and Catherine. Brother Caleb was also present.

Greetings! We almost missed preparing our column this weekend! We've been very busy with the church and youth groups. Plus, we are learning how to ride motorcycles. We joined the Christian Motorcyclist Association and then figured we should know how to ride! We took a full day course in Lewiston a couple of weeks ago, and now have our permits. Pam and Carlton Rugg are teaching us how to ride, and we go on our first ride with our chapter on Saturday! As nervous as we were, now we're finding it a lot of fun! Of course, no one ever thinks of us as "bikers"!

Last Friday we went to hymn sing at the Pinhook Meetinghouse. It's always nice to get together with others and just sing songs. The next sing will be Oct. 25. This Friday the kids are back in their Youth Group Meetings. The younger ones start at 5 p.m. with Pam and Dana, with the older arriving at 6 p.m. to rehearse songs, followed by the actual meeting. The kids will be going to the Ledgerview Nursing Home on Saturday, Oct. 12. They will need to meet at the church at 1 p.m. for a quick rehearsal, and then off to the nursing home. The kids will also be singing at church on Sunday, Oct. 20.

On Saturday, the Youth Group (older kids) went to the Lewiston Civic Center to the Rebecca St. James worship concert. Also playing were Rivertribe (two guys from Australia playing instruments, including the didgeridoo), Charlamaine, Fuse Box (they are a Christian hard rock band), Chris Tomlin, and, of course, Rebecca St. James. We all (including the adults) had a great time, and look forward to more concerts. The younger kids spent the night over at Pam's. She took them to the Christian Academy over on Route 26 in Oxford where they were holding a missionary conference. The kids heard stories of missionary adventure, saw pictures, and ate great food. On Sunday, we all went over for Services (there were no Sunday school classes) and enjoyed the wonderful musical ministry of Rev. David Lloyd. He played many inspirational songs on a variety of instruments, including the marimba, wine glasses, organ, pipes, cow bells, and metal drums. Ben Conant assisted him on the piano, and John Holiday got up at one point and sang a trio with Rev. Lloyd and Ben. We went over our usual 1 hour for services, but it was most definitely worth it. We certainly hope that the reverend will be able to come back to our little church again. Afterwards, we went down to the vestry for refreshments and fellowship.

Before we forget, there is a church meeting on Tuesday, Oct. 8 in the vestry. Unfortunately, we have forgotten at what time it starts! There is a sign on the vestry door, or you can give Margaret Barton a call — she'll probably know!

This past Tuesday (Oct. 1) was Susan Barton's birthday. Happy Birthday, a few days late, Sue! And this Saturday, is Tabitha Coriveau's 8th birthday!

We're sure we're forgetting something. Oh well, we'll remember for next week's column. Have a wonderful week, and God Bless!

From the Bethel Rotary Club

This week in Rotary, Trooper James Nolan shared with us the life of a trooper and the elements of the Maine State Police.

Trooper Nolan is a native up-state New Yorker and was an example of a "Kindergarten Cop" when he worked in education. He worked with the OOB Police Dept. before becoming a Maine State Police Trooper. He enjoys ice hockey and skiing.

His troop is Troop B — Northern Oxford County, out of Gray. Their patrol is from the New Hampshire border to Androscoggin County to the Canadian border to Oxford.

The beginning of the Maine State Police was in 1921 when it was more or less a highway patrol before becoming involved with the criminal aspect as it is known today.

He joined the Maine State Police because they hold themselves to a high standard. They are very traditional and have core values and integrity. Some traditions still seen today are that there are no cages in their vehicles. This evolved from the early days when troopers traditionally had a large, strong physical presence and the captive sat in the front passenger seat. Also, it is still on the books that the colonel must grant permission for a trooper's nuptials.

The Maine State Police is divided into nine troops from dividing the state into a grid for response times and are designated by letters. Troopers are on a 24-hour call-out. There are about 350 troopers, including the Colonel. Their headquarters is in Augusta.

The departments under the Maine State Police include criminal investigation division (CID), canine division, CVEU (tractor-trailers), bomb team, tactical team, air wing, and accident reconstruction division.

The typical day for a trooper is anything but routine, except for the paperwork. They work with civil problems — anything from a response to serving papers, traffic

Continuing series: Polio Eradication — Fulfilling Our Promise. The polio eradication effort by Rotary and its partners has expanded, in many countries, the capacity to fight other diseases by building effective disease reporting and surveillance systems, training epidemiologists and establishing a global laboratory network.

Ten of thousands of health workers have now been trained to investigate cases of paralysis and manage immunization programs. Many millions of volunteers have been trained to deliver oral polio vaccine and are now more enthusiastic about public health in general.

Coldchain, transport, and communications systems for immunization have been strengthened. This improved health network is another legacy of PolioPlus.

Congratulations to Gayle Russell as one of our recipients of the Non-traditional Scholarships. Gayle pursued nursing in Florida this summer.

Happy October Birthday to Kevin Finley, Jim Reuter, Kathy Thrall, and Steve Wright.

Inside Rotary: The Nittany Lions are now 3 and 0. Congratulations to The Good Food Store on their Judge's Choice Chowdah win. Kevin, sorry to hear that the vespa is out of commission. Thank you for all your volunteer work Anita.

Mary E. Valentine, a volunteer in the Bethel Historical Society's Research Library will present the next lecture in the 2002 series on Thursday, October 10 in the meeting room of the Dr. Moses Mason House, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Her topic will be "Western Maine Saints: Early Mormons in the Bethel Area." Miss Valentine has researched many connections in western Maine relating to the early Church of Jesus Christ, Latter Day Saints, known popularly as the Mormons. Anyone interested in learning more about this topic is cordially invited to attend.

Over a thousand members strong, the Bethel Historical Society, founded in 1966, is western Maine's largest and most comprehensive full-time historical agency, dedicated to collecting, preserving, and interpreting the regional past for present and future generations. For over thirty-five years, the Society's activities have included lectures, exhibits, special events, heritage festivals, workshops, conferences, school and educational programs, and publications. Since 1974, the Society has operated from its Broad Street headquarters, the Dr. Moses Mason House, a period house museum and research library. In 1999, it opened the O'Neil Robinson House (next door) to the public for an expanded exhibit program, museum shop space, and administrative offices. Through the years, the Society's achievements have been recognized by a number of state and national organizations.

We give offenders a second chance.

To someone just released from prison, the promise of a new life can seem impossible to achieve. Yet, for more than 100 years, Volunteers of America has been doing just that—providing offenders with services they need to create new and better lives. We provide such programs as substance abuse treatment, juvenile delinquency prevention, education and life skills training, re-entry programs, specialized female offender programs and AIDS intervention programs. Find out what you can do to help those who are ready to change their lives. Call 1 (800) 899-0089 or visit us at www.voia.org.

several places, including the Woodstock Town Office and from members of the auxiliary. They must be sent in to be received at the Secretary of State's office in Augusta by Oct. 18, to assure receiving your button with your veteran's name on it in time for the election on Nov. 5.

Cents-off coupons are still being collected to send to our military bases overseas for the benefit of our service people and their families who may be struggling to make ends meet. There is also "Operation Toasty Toes" which is a program to knit or crochet slippers for our servicemen or women overseas. Directions for these can be obtained by contacting Olive Risko at 665-2909. Like to knit or crochet and want something to do during the long winter evenings? This is it.

Plans are for two benefits this month. On Saturday, there will be a pig roast followed by a dance with music furnished by Jewel Clark. This is for Amos Kimball, a young man who has numerous relatives in the auxiliary, including his wife, Koral. He was in an accident and sustained a broken neck and has no insurance. In addition, a baby girl was born to them on Sept. 17 somewhat prematurely. They could certainly use our help.

On the 19th there will be another supper from 5 to 7 p.m. to benefit Richard Sprague. The cost is $5 and will be followed by a dance from 8 to 11 p.m. to music of The Suspects. This also has a cost of $5. He also has several relatives in the auxiliary and at the young age of 34 is struggling with cancer, having been treated for one and now has another in a new location.

The Auxiliary Unit will meet again on Thursday, Oct. 3, after a 6 p.m. potluck supper. On Oct. 17 they will have the annual Girls and Boys State supper for those who attended these mock government programs last June. They will be reporting on their involvement while there and will have the opportunity to meet again with the directors of the program who have been invited to attend the supper along with the participants' families.

From the Woodstock Republican Committee

The Woodstock Republican Committee headquarters opened officially on Monday, Sept. 22, at 3:30 p.m. The committee met for a meeting and information from various candidates. David Conary, the candidate for the House Representative District 70, which includes Rumford, Milton and Woodstock, greeted all and spoke. Also, Oxford County Republican chairman, Paul Billings and the Rev. Norman Rust of the Oxford County headquarters of South Paris, Judy Bennett, chairman of Woodstock and the vice-chairman, Joan Putman, were present and spoke of the upcoming election.

From Bethel Democratic Committee

The Bethel Committee of the Oxford County Democrats have extended hours for the Spring Street office through the November 5 election. Local volunteers will be available to assist interested voters and supporters on Monday afternoons from 3 to 5 p.m. and on Saturday mornings from 9:30 a.m. through noon for anyone wishing candidate's publications, signs or event information.

Bethel Committee co-chairs Ginger Kelly and Mike Broderick also encourage interested supporters to participate in the Bethel Dems regularly scheduled 6:30 p.m. Thursday strategy sessions featuring local candidates and field personnel from the Coordinated Campaigns. On Thursday, Oct. 3 we will be pitching in for sign assembly, telephone polling after the meeting. Thursday night sessions end by 8:30.

A SPOT OF TROUBLE
Robert Sanborn (1884-1949) gives his dog "Trouble" a bike ride at the Sanborn farm in Middle Intervale in this moment (about 1900) captured by the camera of Guy Coffin. This photograph is among thousands that can be found at the Bethel Historical Society, which also possesses an outstanding collection of manuscripts, books, documents, and artifacts relating to western Maine and northern New Hampshire. The society is currently raising funds to support its Regional History Center and plans an addition to the 1821 O'Neil Robinson House on Broad Street, which now houses exhibit galleries, offices, and the museum shop. Completion of this project will provide for improved storage space and greater access to collections as well as rooms devoted to educational activities, genealogical and historical research, and traditional crafts. Once the Center is fully operational, it will offer an expanded series of lectures, special events, conferences, courses, seminars, and publications. To learn more about this project, call the society at 824-2908 or 800-824-2910, write to us at our e-mail address info@bethelhistorical.org or visit Web site at www.bethelhistorical.org

Surgery isn't what it used to be.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR EXCEPTIONAL CARE RESPONDS TO THE GROWING NEEDS OF OUR COMMUNITY.

These days surgery is more often performed on an outpatient basis. At one time patients routinely spent several days in the hospital after surgery. Now, new advances have led to shorter stays and quicker recoveries.

Stevens Memorial Hospital is meeting this trend by increasing and enhancing its facilities and outpatient equipment. A new suite will be devoted exclusively to endoscopies and minor procedures. This will improve patient privacy and convenience, and increase the capacity for surgery and outpatient procedures.

Change can be a very healthy thing.

From the Oxford County Democrats

The Oxford County Democrats will hold a Candidates Recognition Supper on Thursday, Oct. 10 at 5:30 at the Eagles Hall in Rumford. Everyone interested in electing Democrats on Nov. 5 is invited to attend. State Senate candidate Bruce Bryant, legislative candidates Marlee Turner, Shirley Powell, Lynn Baker, Margaret Reimer, Rosita Gagne, Ron Hemingway, and John Patrick have been invited to attend, as have county candidates Jane Rich for register of deeds, Mary Ann Prue for treasurer and James Theriault for sheriff.

The Democratic Field offices in Fryeburg, Bethel, Buckfield, Dixfield, Rumford and Paris are open and volunteers are welcome. Anyone interested in helping out may contact Oxford County Chairperson Cathy Newell at 875-2116.

The booth at the Fryeburg Fair was open throughout the fair week and a good delegation of Democrats is expected for the parade on Saturday to welcome gubernatorial candidate, Congressman John Baldacci.

MARIGOLD E.

MARIGOLD E.

Marigold Evangeline "Goldie" Thurlow Mason, 67, of West Paris, died unexpectedly Sunday evening, Sept. 29.

She was born in Woodstock on Sept. 6, 1935, the daughter of Bernal and Hope Appleby Thurlow. She was educated at the Forestdale Seventh Day Adventist Church School in Woodstock, Browning Elementary School and South Lancaster Academy in South Lancaster, Mass., where she met life-long mate, James Lowell Mason Sr. They were married on Sept. 6, 1952. Their children and grandchildren had a 50-year open house on Sunday, Sept. 22, the Hope M. Thurlow Memorial Hall to celebrate the occasion.

For those 50 years, they made their home on Curtis Hill in West Paris, while raising three children and seven grandchildren. During this time, "Goldie" received degrees in dental hygiene and practical nursing. Because of her great desire to help others, she always made herself available whether she was well or not, to aid anyone in need. For years, she headed up the community services for the South Woodstock Seventh Day Adventist Church and church school board.

She enjoyed doing many projects that involved all of the children at Forestdale School, right up until her untimely death. She also served as camp nurse for Lawrowd's Blind Camp, Junior Camp and at the annual Northern New England SDA meeting in Freeport.

On the homestead, "Ma" as always around to support her husband, three children and their spouses along with all of the grandchildren. "Goldie" always enjoyed entertaining with potluck suppers and lawn parties at home with her extended family. "Mom," "Ma," and "Goldie" will be greatly missed by a multitude of family, friends and church members.

She is survived by her husband of just over 50 years; three children, Jim Jr. and wife, Pam, Jeanne Grover and her husband, Roni Sr. and Jerold and his wife, Tracie, all of Curtis Hill; seven grandchildren, Roni Grover and his wife, Naomi, Lyndon Mason, Rachel Grover, James Mason III, Bryce Mason, Becca Mason, Reuel Grover and very soon to be born, Tia Mason; three sisters, Dorothy Davis of Ootawah, Tenn. Virginia Mason of Woodstock and Beryl Hall and her husband, Wendall, of Bryant Pond; many nieces, nephews and great-nieces and nephews.

She was predeceased by a daughter March 10, 1954; three grandchildren, Brittan, Talia and Tiana Mason; and two brothers, Bernal Thurlow and Carroll Thurlow.

Thoughts from the Pastor's study

It has been impressive upon me recently, that a lot of things have happened to the people of Bethel — things that could cause discouragement and loss of hope. There have been lives lost, business closings, downsizing, illness and other tragic events. In time of crises people tend to look for and trust in lots of "things" for answers and for hope.

I would like to share with you that there is only one place to find the real answer to all of life's difficulties and hardships. I am speaking from experience, for I have been through unemployment, loss of loved ones, trials, and a near fatal car accident 17 months ago — from which I am still recovering.

In time of despair, discouragement and difficulty, some people turn to alcohol, drugs, divorce, crime, etc., for answers. There are no answers in those things — just more heartache. The real and only answer, I know, is found in Jesus Christ and Jesus Christ alone. In a changing world, I would encourage you to place your hope and your trust in the changeless Christ. He is the only "absolute" you can trust and He will never let you down.

When trial, tragedy, turmoil or turbulence come into our lives, Jesus Christ can give us hope. That hope can be found in a book called the Holy Bible. Today there is hope found at a Bible-Believing Church and in fellowship with other Christians.

The Bible says in II Corinthians 6:2 "Behold now is the day of salvation." We have absolutely no assurance of "another breath." No matter the time of day or night, Jesus Christ is only a prayer away. If you would like to talk with me about this, I can be reached at 824-6865 or e-mail me at holliday@megalink.net
